I am currently making a Sudoku game using the java card 3.0. I am trying to display the field on the screen as quickly as possible. There is no problem with the code, but can someone explain what I need to change in the code to make it faster? static class Sudoku extends JComponent{ JTextField field; JButton button; public static void main(String[] args) { JFrame window = new JFrame(); JPanel p = new JPanel(); p.setLayout(new FlowLayout()); window.add(p); p.add(new Sudoku()); window.setBounds(100, 100, 300, 200); window.setVisible(true); } public Sudoku(){ p.add(new JButton("Done")); field = new JTextField(50); p.add(field); } } A: I don't have much to say about your solution, just a few general points: First of all, your question, as written, has little to do with JavaCard and is a little bit vague. But I will give you an idea. Static classes should be declared at the top of your class, not inside it. For simple problems, you can just write the code and see that it works before posting it here. It is not a good way to learn. Do not use setBounds, it has poor effect in many cases. Don't call methods from another class in main. This is not how a real application should be developed. f678ea9f9e
